Fifth Avenue Hotel today, when the Crisp-Mills-Cleveland Reform Club banquet affair averted a bloody uprising. In a physician's life that gives him more catinfaction came up for discussion.

Col. Walsh said: "It has been said that the reason they did not let Speaker Crisp make an oddress was because he was a free silver Unsuccessful Attempt to Unseat the Hind man. That is a fine argument, since Mills voted in the House for every free silver measure that was ever presented. He would have ruined himself with his constituents In betaring back plumpness and color to thin and pulse the bad voted against free silver coinage he would have been defeated for renomination. In the Senate he voted for such a bill, too, because he had pledged bimself to so vote to get the senatorship. Crisp is as good a tariff reformer as Mills better; for he would go slow and not destroy any industries.

"We must have revenues to the senatorship to the sen

we must have revenues to pay the expenses of the government, and the revenues above the point where they will be virtually on the free trade basis should be used for incidental protection. If the democratic party is going to give the nation the extreme of free trade there is trouble ahead for it. Speaker Crisp has been strengthened by the affair in which his burnillation was attempted. He is which his bemiliation was attempted. He is stronger today than before it happened." Capt Howell was much more pronounced, saying: "The south is full of men like myself who do not want the extreme of pro-tection nor the extreme of free trade. We believe in the golden mean as the best for Cleveland. What the south wants is not free trade of the extreme character, nor yet protection of the extreme character. We want the even and most good to the greatest number.'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—At the third day's session of the American Federation of Labor this morning the committee on resolutions reported a plan to create national or international unions whenever seven local unions of any craft had been formed. President Gompers took part in the discussion which followed, expressing the view that it would not always be practicable owing to the weakness of newly formed unions.

The debate was suspended by the appearance of ex-Senator Henry W. Elair of New Hamp-hire, who addressed the assembled delegates on his proposed improvement of the common school system. He expressed the belief that a revulsion of sentiment has taken place in favor of the Blair educational bill, which may result in its passage by the next Congress.

He was particularly hopeful because of the increased favor with which the public schools have apparently been regarded by the Homan Catholic Court and Said: "With the favorable regard and probable co-operation of Catholic power in this country, the friends of the prospects of its passage in the near future,"
